With a heavy vote being recorded in some sections of the city and a light one in others, Mansfield was going to the polls today in a special election to decide the fate of a million-dollar school building program.

The question was whether the school board should issue bonds for $550,000 to match a federal grant of $450,000 to construct two new junior high schools, modernize nine grade school buildings and erect an addition to senior high school.

A check by The News-Journal at 10:30 a. m. today indicated that about 6,000 persons would vote on the question—considered by school board and election board officials as a heavy vote for a special election.

In the August primary, when the bond issue was defeated the total vote cast on the question was 9,122. Of that number, 5,546 voted for the bonds and 3,576 against it. The question obtained a majority of slightly more than 60 per cent, but lacked the required 65 per cent.

For passage today, the bond issue must also obtain a 65 per cent majority.

Ponder Fateful Decision

On these three men, whom no one in the world will envy, rests the responsibility for making a most fateful decision—shall they permit their country to be dismembered, and part of it join Adolf Hitler's German reich. Their cause deserted by the democracies of Europe, they were trying to make up their minds today whether to give up as their friends have, or fight a lone war against powerful Germany. Top left is Eduard Benes, president of Czechoslovakia. Top right is the republic's premier, Milan Hodza. At the bottom is Foreign Minister Kamil Krofta. For months, the Czechs have been defying Germany, feeling certain that if attacked by the Nazis, they would get help from France, Britain and Russia. Now all three have told them they can expect no help and should cede some of their richest territory to Germany.

BLOODY BORDER CLASHES CREATE ADDED TENSION

Prague Cabinet Marks Time, Hopes For Sympathetic Developments; Russia Tells Czech Cabinet She Can't Help; Custom Houses Bombed.

Europe's Crisis at Glance

(By United Press)

PRAGUE—Czech cabinet sends decision to Britain and France on surrender of Sudeten areas to Germany. Czechs and Germans clash on border.

LONDON—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain due to see Hitler again at Godesberg, probably tomorrow, to complete Sudeten deal.

BERLIN—Hitler, on verge of greatest triumph, will insist on full and quick acceptance of his demands for the Sudeten area.

MOSCOW—Soviet Russia unlikely to obstruct Sudeten deal.

WARSAW—Poland tells powers she wants to be cut in on any deal for partition of Czechoslovakia.

BUDAPEST—Regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy sees Nazi Field Marshal Hermann Goering, reportedly to demand return of Hungarian minority in Czechoslovakia.

BULLETIN

PRAGUE—(UP)—The Czech reply to Adolf Hitler's Sudeten demands was delivered to the British and French tonight. The nature of the reply was not revealed.

(Compiled From Latest Cables.)

Czechoslovakia stalled for time today in her struggle to maintain her 20 years of independence as a republic, while border clashes intensified the European crisis over whether Germany should be given the Sudeten territory in Czechoslovakia.

The Czech cabinet marked time because a "no" answer to the demands of Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany would start a conflict which would decimate its population and make Czechoslovakia a second Siberia.

If the nation says "yes" to Hitler, it might start a possible revolution which would sweep the cabinet from office and result in war anyway.

The Czechs therefore seek to gain time in the belief that public opinion is reaching a peak of sympathy for their country which might result in the resignations of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Britain and Premier Edouard Daladier of France, who have given in to the demands of Hitler, and retracted Czech promises of military aid in case of invasion.

Russia, on whom the Czechs had relied upon as their last resort of military support, meanwhile, was reported to have given the government official word that the soviet could not assist because she could not convey troops through Rumania.

Customs Houses Attacked.

While this atmosphere prevailed at Prague, the government learned of three attacks on the Czech frontier customs houses by bands of men who were said to have crossed the border from Germany armed with machine guns, hand granades and pistols.

One of the customs houses was wrecked at Klein-Aupa and at Ebersdorf, government reports said, men who crossed the border occupied the customs house and took possession of the postoffice.

Czech officers returned their fire and a detachment of gendarmerie finally dislodged the attackers from the building.

The Czech method of gaining time, is asking questions. Last night they sent an urgent query to France:

"You have presented us a proposal for the partition of Czechoslovakia. Does this mean you have abrogated your treaty with us and that even while negotiations are going on you would not come to our help if we were attacked?"

An answer to this query has not been received, although hourly it grows more important.

Shelby Council Ok's 69½-Cent Gas Rate

Long-Disputed Ordinance Passed By 4-1 Vote After Discussion in Closed Session; Gives Ohio Fuel 3-Year Contract.

(By Staff Correspondent)

SHELBY — Following a 40-minute discussion behind closed doors, city council ended its seven-month controversial gas rate problem last night by approving final passage of a three-year contract which continues virtually the present rates with the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

Councilman C. E. Morris made the motion for the final passage of the ordinance. It was seconded by Councilman Chester Bell, advocate of the proposal.

Councilman Charles Swanger, who has consistently fought for lower gas rates, made a motion before the vote was taken that the time clause be changed to one year instead of three, but no second was made to the motion.

Swanger then reiterated claims he has previously made that the rates were too high when compared with Mansfield's rate. He said that council should "at least give the pubic a break" by making a 5-cent hundred rate apply to all gas consumed over 5,000 cubic feet, instead of 10,000 as read in the contract.

Councilman Kenneth Rothlisberger then made a motion for the closed meeting for discussion. It was seconded by Councilman John Chew. Twenty residents, present for the second time since negotiations were opened on the gas rate last spring, were asked to leave the meeting. A number had protested the new rate schedule to council.

At the reopenng of the meeting after a 40-minute closed session, Councilman Rothlisberger said that "council had voiced opinions that Swanger's proposition should not be accepted as it might jeopardize the chances of the gas company accepting the ordinance."

The ordinance then passed on a 4 to 1 vote. Swanger was the lone dissenter. As set up in the new rates, the average 5,000-foot consumer will pay 69½ cents a thousand per month, while the 10,000-user will pay about 62¼ cents a thousand. The rate schedule follows:

First 500 cu. ft. for $1.00.

5.5 cents per hundred for next 9,500.

5 cents per hundred for all in excess.

The gas company will have 30 days to have a written acceptance to the new schedule filed at the city hall. Kenneth Gallant, Shelby branch manager of the company, has said that the company was "favorable" to the proposal.

City One of Coldest Spots In Nation, Mercury Falls To 39

With the mercury at 39 degrees, only seven above freezing, Mansfield was one of the coldest spots on the continent last night.

Despite the low temperature no frost was reported in the county, however, and it was believed overcast skies early this morning saved fruit growers and gardeners from the first frost of the season.

Fair weather and slowly rising temperatures are due to bring relief from the cold by Wednesday, the weather bureau said.

Mansfield's frigid 39 degrees ranked second to Moorhead, Minn., and Winnipeg, Canada, which reported 38 to 7:30 a. m. today. It was 40 at Minneapolis, 48 at Columbus and 50 at Cleveland.

Mansfielders brought heavy clothing out of storage and the smoke of furnace fires billowed from most of the homes in the city. Heavy clouds held the mercury to a low level throughout the morning, and at noon it had climbed only to 61.

Yesterday's high was 66 degrees, and the average for the past 24 hours was 52.5 degrees, about 12 below normal.

LONDON: Chamberlain Gives Hitler British Reply Tomorrow

(By United Press)

LONDON — Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain expects to leave tomorrow for Godesberg on the German Rhine to inform Fuehrer Adolf Hitler officially of the British-French surrender to his demands in the Czechoslovak minority crisis, it was understood today.

Chamberlain asked Hitler last night, it was understood, to name the day and place of their meeting.

It was hoped that by that time Czechoslovakia would have assented formally to Hitler's terms "in principle," leaving details to be arranged later.

It was understood that Chamberlain was planning, on his return from Germany, to summon parliament in extraordinary session probably next Tuesday, Sept. 27.

Thus he would be able, in explaining why he and Premier Edouard Daladier agreed to aid Hitler in his plan to dismember Czechoslovakia, to hold forth hope of a real consolidation of peace.

It was learned in a most reliable quarter today that ordinary members of parliament had been advised that Winston Churchill, dissident conservative leader, and Anthony Eden, who resigned as foreign secretary because of the government's policy of giving in to the totalitarian rulers, were considering a joint attack on the

Some persons interpreted the communique as an effort to prepare the people to realize that Poland may take by force Czech territory inhabited by Poles if the powers fail to grant Polish demands.

7 Killed, 40 Injured As Trains Crash In California

SEARCH DEBRIS FOR 3 MISSING MAIL CLERKS

Both Engines Derailed as Crack Flyer Rams Train Waiting on Siding.

(By International News Service)

LOS ANGELES—The Southern Pacific company here today set the list of known dead in the collision of two crack passenger trains at Tortuga, Cal., at seven. Three mail clerks were reported missing and the number of injured were estimated at between 35 and 40.

Listed as dead were the engineer and fireman of the westbound Argonaut, the fireman of the eastbound Californian and four coach passengers aboard the Californian.

Engines of both trains were overturned as were the first three cars of the Argonaut and the first car of the Californian, the company reported.

Crashed on Siding.

The Californian, which left Los Angeles for Chicago at 8:05 o'clock last night, was on the siding, waiting for the Argonaut, en route from New Orleans to Los Angeles, to pass.

The Argonaut roared on to the siding and plowed directly into the Californian.

Both engines were derailed and overturned, while several cars on either passenger train were also overturned.

The fireman, identity not known, on the Californian was killed, as were the fireman and engineer on the Argonaut .

J. E. Dyer, vice-president in charge of operations for the railroad company, was a passenger on the Argonaut, and immediately took charge of the situation.

He sent out an appeal to all towns in the Imperial valley to rush every available ambulance, doctor and nurse.

They responded from Niland, Brawley, El Centro and Calipatria.

The crash of the two trains tore down telegraph wires next to the tracks, and it was understood that it was only through heroic efforts of the train crews that a working telegraph line was set up to call for aid.

Labor Considers Election Board Ruling Tonight

The Richland county branch of the Labor's Non-Partisan league today called a special meeting for tonight to decide what course it might take on the action of the election board in ruling out the independent candidacy of Mark H. Myers for county commissioner.

The election board ruled his petitions illegal because he had not signed them.

The league is expected to consider tonight appealing to the attorney general for a ruling on the case, with a write-in campaign a possibility in case the ruling is unfavorable, according to M. J. Beery, a league official.

Delegates from Delano lodge, as well as unions at Globe Steel, Ideal Electric, Dominion, Mansfield Tire and Westinghouse have been invited to attend the meeting. Representatives from Mansfield Liederkranz, Worker Alliance, Electrical Workers district council, Colored Citizens league and other affiliated organizations are expected to attend.

The league at an earlier meeting endorsed the school bond issue, on which the city is voting today.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield motorists who waited until the last minute in 1937 to get their drivers' licenses are not doing the same thing this year. Jack Berger, assistant secretary of the Richland County Automobile club, says those who waited in line, some for several hours, last fall, were among the first to purchase the new licenses, apparently making good a resolution that they would not be involved in another 11th-hour jam. All of which makes Berger and other auto club employes very happy.

Dogs which serve as companions for blind persons are not uncommon, but nine Mansfield youngsters with defective vision or hearing are going to be guided to school by other pupils appointed by principals to aid them. The pupils, who attend classes for handicapped children, have been transported in taxicabs, but the state department of education recommended that they walk as an economy measure. Boy and girl companions for them will be paid 50 cents a week to help them across streets and to watch out for automobiles on the way to school.

With his eyes red from loss of sleep and his disposition somewhat ruffled, the salesman related how he was kept awake until 5 a. m. by a noisy card party in an adjoining hotel room. "But I didn't identify any of the roisterers, so they needn't worry about me putting them in the dog house," he added.

Accused Bad Check Passer, Sought for Months, Jailed.

Leaving a trail of bad checks with hotel managers throughout the middle west, Clayton D. McConkey, 41, Houston, Tex., was held in the county jail today under $1,500 bond after he pleaded guilty in municipal court to a charge of issuing a check with insufficient funds.

A check for $15 issued to the Fairview hotel last July 5, was responsible for McConkey's arrest after he had been sought by police in a number of cities for several months. The affidavit for his arrest was signed by Earl Bates, manager of the hotel.

Apprehended by Cleveland police on a description provided by Mansfield and Richland county authorities, McConkey was returned here and was bound over to the county grand jury on his guilty plea.

Records of the Ohio Hotels Protective association show McConkey had passed 39 bad checks in recent months.

BUILDING CODE READING OK'D

SHELBY — With a few minor changes, city council unanimously approved the first reading to a building code for Shelby during its regular session last night at the city hall.

In the ordinance, drawn up by Law Director Theodore Lutz, a yearly license fee of $5 each is set up for plumbers, sewer diggers and electricians. A $1 permit is needed to remodel or reconstruct a house when an expenditure of over $25 is planned and also when building an addition or new structure.

City officials pointed out that the code is not a new regulation in Shelby, but that the old ordinances had not been strictly enforced and now they were revised and brought up to date under the one ordinance.

BULLET WOUNDS CITY MANAGER

Cleveland Heights Official Blames Released Workman for Council Shooting.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — City Manager Harry H. Canfield, 57, of Cleveland Heights, in a hospital today with a bullet wound in his mouth, was said by police to have been the victim of a former city employe who was disgruntled because of his dismissal five months ago.

The bullet missed Mayor Frank C. Cain of Cleveland Heights who was standing beside Canfield after the close of a city council meeting.

"It's the most peaceful meeting we ever had," City Law Director G. E. Hartshorn had laughingly remarked to the others.

Just then shots were fired. Hartshorn grabbed Charles Sabetto, 61, and received two blows on the head from a pistol as he pinned Sabetto to the floor. Police later quoted Sabetto as saying he wanted to "get" the city manager and mayor because he had been dismissed.

Canfield, former Western Reserve athlete and Case football coach, was not believed in serious condition. The bullet entered his mouth, struck a gold tooth and came out his right cheek.

ST. LOUIS UNION LEADER SLAIN AS HE STEPS FROM AUTOMOBILE

(By United Press)

ST. LOUIS—Arthur Schading, 51, leader of St. Louis electrical trade unions and principal figure in at tangle of disputes in the union field, was assassinated by two men last night as he stepped from his union headquarters.

John Thompson, a union member, was with Schading when he was killed. They had just left union hall after a business meeting when the gunmen approached them from the rear, riddled Schading's head and body with 12 slugs, then fled. Thompson said he had not obtained a description of the killers other than to notice that they had been masked.

"I was so scared I couldn't do a thing," he said.

Schading was business agent of local No. 1 of the Electrical Workers' union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, and had been involved in recent months in an intra-union dispute.

Schading had a lengthy police record. He had been arrested 21 times for questiong in cases ranging from traffic violations to murders but had never been convicted. Last spring he was acquitted on a charge of having attempted to extort $2,000 from Harry Wendt, Kirkwood, Mo., theater owner, who charged that Schading had asked the sum to place the theater on the union's "accredited" list and arrange for installation of wiring.

Schading was the second business agent of the union to die by assassins' bullets. John Farrell, business agent for the union for many years, was shot and killed on a street in 1912.

DIES OF BURNS

Galion Man Succumbs After Naptha Explodes.

GALION—Burns suffered in a naptha explosion Monday afternoon resulted in the death of Vaud V. Carlin, 38, of 125 South Riblet street, in the Good Samaritan hospital last night.

Mr. Carlin suffered burns to his legs and body when a bottle of naptha he was using to wash his hands on his return from work, exploded near the kitchen stove, igniting his clothing. Alone in the house, he ran out on the porch and a neighbor, John Taylor, smothered the flames with a blanket.

The explosion occurred shortly after 4 p. m. He died seven hours later in the hospital.

A lifelong resident of Galion, Mr. Carlin was employed by the Pittsburgh Piping company. Two sisters, Mrs. Frank Barrett of Umqua, Ore., and Miss Blanche Carlin of Galion, survive.

The body was removed to the Volk funeral home. Arrangements are incomplete.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

VOTERS DECIDE O'CONNOR, FAY CONGRESS RACE

Fight, Final on Roosevelt's Campaign List, Headlines 4 State Primaries.

(By Associated Press)

The success or failure of presidential efforts to defeat Chairman John J. O'Connor of the house rules committee was being determined today by voters of New York City's east side tenements and penthouses.

O'Connor, whom Mr. Roosevelt recently termed "one of the most effective obstructionists" in the house, sought both Democratic and Republican nominations for a ninth term.

The double contest was about the only one giving national aspect to today's primaries in New York. New Jersey, Massachusetts and Wisconsin. It was the president's fourth—and final—attempt in this year's primaries to unseat lawmakers whom he called conservatives. He lost Democratic Senatorial battles in South Carolina, Georgia and Maryland.

Has Roosevelt Favor.

James H. Fay, supported by Mr. Roosevelt, was O'Connor's Democratic opponent. No matter who wins that nomination, Fay's name will be on the November ballot as candidate of the American Labor party. Running against O'Connor on the Republican ticket was Allen Dulles, former state department aid.

O'Connor has been one of the key men of the house because the rules committee decides whether to give major legislation the right-of-way to the floor. He and his opponents have carried their lively campaign from fashionable Park avenue to the East river in Midtown Manhattan.

New York will not select senatorial candidates until party conventions next week. Both the state's senatorial seats are at stake. The term of Senator Wagner expires and the death of Senator Copeland created a vacancy.

Wisconsin and New Jersey voters, however, were choosing senatorial nominees today. Sen. F. Ryan Duffy was unopposed for Democratic renomination in the former state, but there were contests on the Republican and Progressive tickets.

In New Jersey, William H. Ely was the only Democratic candidate for the seat of Sen. John Milton, who decided not to run again. Former Sen. W. Warren Barbour had two opponents on the Republican ballot.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Two Incidents Show that Radicals Want Exclusive Rights of Free Speech

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I have clippings of two news dispatches of the same date, taken from a left-wing newspaper, reporting similar incidents in New Jersey.

One tells with obvious pleasure of the disruption of a Nazi meeting in Elizabeth. The other relates with a note of indignation the mobbing of a radical orator at a meeting in Hoboken.

The Elizabeth dispatch says: "The moral of this story is, if you're going to hold Nazi meetings in Elizabeth, do it quietly. Twenty-five members of the German-American Volksbund came to this decision last night, after 500 anti-Nazis took over, broke up and otherwise manhandled a scheduled bund meeting at Eintracht hall. Only twenty-five bund sympathizers came, but the anti-Nazis, showing real interest, sent a small army. Pickets blocked the entrance, others took over the speakers' platform inside the hall. The meeting was over before it began."

The Hoboken story reports that Herman Matson, critic of Mayor Bernard McFeely and his Democratic city administration, was mobbed and beaten when he attempted to hold a meeting in Hudson Square park on the Hoboken waterfront and was arrested on a charge of inciting to riot. Mr. Matson's wife, who is expecting a baby, also is said to have been punched and kicked as she attempted to reach her husband on the platform. Morris Milgram, state secretary of the Workers Defense league, which appears to have been the sponsor of the meeting, charged that members of the International Longshoremen's association of the A. F. of L., and "hired gangsters" were responsible for the riot.

In the Elizabeth disturbance a police captain rescued the chairman of the Nazi meeting before injury could be done him. In Hoboken the police apparently held back until Matson and his wife had been hurt and then arrested Matson.

The two incidents were identical in the respect that speakers were silenced by mob action, yet one disturbance was class-angled in the newspaper dispatch and made to seem a trivial and satisfactory happening.

In the one case the police were alert enough to protect the person of the orator of the evening but failed to maintain his constitutional rights to speak and that of his adherents peacefully to assemble. This is the same constitutional right, however, for which such clamorous demand has been raised in the disturbed area of New Jersey by left-wing organizations when left-wing meetings have been suppressed.

I yield to no man in my loathing for the Nazi disease in Europe or here, but I put my finger on this parallel as an unguarded admission of my contention raised last fall at the time of the agitation by the Civil Liberties Union in Jersey City that the radicals do not cherish civil liberties as such. Vile as their conduct and purposes are, the Nazis and Fascists of foreign birth and hyphenated sympathies are no more contemptuous of equal enjoyment of civil liberties than the radicals.

It was a joke to mob the Nazis, block the entrance, take over the speakers' platform inside the hall and manhandle a scheduled meeting. one gathers from the quiet humor of the lead sentence, "the moral of this story is, if you're going to hold Nazi meetings in Elizabeth do it quietly." But the same interference with the constitutional rights of speech and assembly is serious when the victims represent the radical point of view.

And the moral of this story, to borrow the opening phrase of the good-humored dispatch about the mobbing in Elizabeth, is that the constitutional rights of speech and assembly have no friends at the extremity of either wing, but will be maintained, if at all, only by those who dwell in the middle and curse both wings with equal fervor and patriotism.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Ted Snyder's been on the hill off Sunset overlooking the Gyp Strip only two years, but his little place is a storehouse of memories that dig deep and spade up light on things as modern as "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "The Yam."

Ted is tall, big and grey, a prophet wandered far from the Tin Pan Alley.

The Ted Snyder Music company. Watterson, Berlin and Snyder. emember?

"He was a skinny, pale-faced kid with an ambition to write lyrics"—this is Ted digging deep and spading up — "and he was writing parodies on popular songs and singing them at Nigger Mike's.

WHAT attracted me to Irving Berlin was his ability to put more meaning in a single line than most lyric-writers could in a whole verse. I put him on at $25 a week when Snyder was drawing $30.

"And then one day he walked into my office, sat at the piano and played it — one of the first songs he'd written both words and music, 'Alexander.' Sometning so new, so different in construction it startled us. We talked it over and decided to try it on the public."

Trying it on the public proved difficult. Singers heard it, shook their heads. Each one had a different excuse for NOT singing it. But they trapped Emma Carus, rising vaude twinkler. Emma wanted one of their songs, but she couldn't have it unless she sang "Alegander" too. Emma was singing a benefit at the Met, and she had her reputation to think of, but finally she capitulated. Applause? Not a ripple. When Emma went next week to the Brooklyn Orpheum, she took "Alexander" along under protest. Still no go. Another pair, Elizabeth Brice and Charles King, grudgingly tried it at Hammerstein's. After one cheerless performance they dropped it.

THE pluggers kept plugging. They got it into a burlesque show that was to open the same night Emma Carus was opening Hammerstein's new roof spot—her biggest break. More pleading, and she agreed to give "Alex" the worthless "second spot."

"We sent a couple of the boys over to cover the burlesque show," —this is Snyder again, grinning reminscently, "—and Irving and I sat in a balcony at Hammerstein's and waited. Carus forgot to sing our song—but remember it was an important night for her too. We sat through the third song, the fourth, fifth and sixth, and I gave up hope. Carus was going over big, but I wanted to go home and forget about it.

"'Come on and stay, see it through,' said Irving. I sat down again, expecting nothing. Carus got hand after hand, they wouldn't let her quit. She was tired out by then. Finally, maybe in desperation, she turned to the orchestra leader and asked for 'Alexander.' She sang one verse and chorus—and I've never heard anything like the ovation she got. Sang ten choruses before they'd let her go. Just then our boys came rushing in from the burlesque house. 'Alexander' had won there too. Next day all Broadway was talking about it. But I'll never be able to tell why we hung on to it when we should have thrown it away."

Today, 27 years later, I heard the filling station man whistling "Alexander."

Sandusky Gets Second Test With Elyria This Week

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's scholastic footballers looked forward today to next week-end to clear up the "best teams" situation since favored elevens romped through their opening warmup games last Saturday in predicted style.

Individual performances were outstanding in the curtain raisers. Whether the early-season stars will fade like spring training rookies, once the going gets tough, remains to be seen.

One luminary expected to stay near the peak is Marion Motley, Canton McKinley's 195-pound colored halfback, who scored four touchdowns, kicked three extra points and passed to Nick Roman, another veteran, as the Bulldogs knocked over Canton Lehman 48 to 6 in the inaugural.

Canton Lehman, after losing to McKinley, stages the first night grid game in Canton's history Friday night as it entertains Euclid Shore.

Massillon's Tigers, hot on the trail of their fourth consecutive state championship claim, beat McKeesport, Pa., 19 to 7, Friday night, with Quarterback George Slusser in the "Frank Merriwell" role. Frank tossed passes to End Fred Toles for two touchdowns and scampered 26 yards for the other. The Tigers this week-end are booked against Mansfield's crew of upsetters on the Mansfield grid.

Backfielder Hilli Hume of Alliance counted five touchdowns as the Aviators turned on a 57 to 0 avalanche to smother Newton Falls, but he's not expected to run that wild Saturday when Kent Roosevelt provides the opposition.

Another 10,000 crowd is expected Friday night at Sandusky as the unbeaten Elyria and Sandusky clubs tangle. Sandusky looks like a "comer" after beating Cleveland Collinwood 19 to 7 to avenge last year's 7-6 loss to the club. Elyria handed Oberlin a 25 to 0 setback, after losing to that team a year ago. Sandusky St. Mary's is starting to rebuild after losing to Crestline 27 to 13.

Two Toledo schools launched their slates with victories, Scott defeating Riley high of South Bend, Ind., 20 to 6, and Woodward chalking up a 20 to 7 win over Ft. Wayne's South Side club.

Hamilton, unbeaten since the second game of 1937 when Portsmouth halted the Big Blue, ran its winning streak to eight by handing Dayton Fairview a 14 to 0 setback, with Junior Quarterback Paul Sarringhaus scoring both markers. Hamilton gets somewhat of a breather this week in Columbus Aquinas, which lost 20 to 0 to Springfield high Friday night.

Coach Allen (Bally) Compton, starting his fifth year at Springfield, has his heaviest line in years, the wall averaging 180 pounds. The backfield stacks up at about 165 pounds. The Wildcats have another Columbus foe on tap this week, West's Cowboys.

They're counting on one of the top teams of the state at Portsmouth. Coach Paul Jenkins' boys beat Akron South 12-7 last week-end, a strong 183-younds-per-man line and a backfield averaging 173, turning the trick. Jenkins has only 46 varsity players, 44 reserves and 44 freshmen in uniform this season. His boys meet Cincinnati Elder this week-end.

Down in southeastern Ohio, Marietta's Tigers served notice that they were "hot" by trouncing Glouster 28 to 0 to celebrate Coach Frank R. (Squat) Sutton's 17th year at the reins. The Tigers open defense of the Central Ohio league championship, which they shared last year with Newark, against Zanesville a week from Friday, following this week's invasion of Chillicothe.

Marion Harding's Presidents, not figured among the stronger teams, pulled the surprise of the opening week by walloping Upper Sandusky 31 to 0.

Harding, North Central Ohio loop member, is expected to fight it out again with Galion for the pennant. Last year Galion won the flag by the margin of Harding's tie game with Ashland, and last week the champs started strong with a 25 to 7 win over Mt. Gilead.

Hammond Promises Trouble

Tygers' Indiana Foe Said to Pack Class Despite East Chicago Rout.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

OF course, it is only natural that everybody should be talking about Massillon this week, but Mansfield will probably see a better ball club at Stadium field a week from Saturday than it now suspects.

George Rogers Clark of Hammond, Ind., which follows Massillon to Stadium field, was beaten by East Chicago, 25 to 2, last week, but this does not reflect too seriously against the Pioneers, according to what we read. East Chicago is rated as one of the powers in that section of the mid-west.

Mansfield will see one of the most spectacular football toters of Indiana when Hammond comes to this fair city. He is Frank Shimala. "Shimala has no pear as a back in this region," a Hammond scribe writes.

While Madison may not have a push-over in New London, which it meets under the lights at the Rams' field Friday, Coach Al Fendrick's powerful club looks like a pretty good bet to win . . . and avenge a couple of the worst defeats ever absorbed by the suburban school in football. But Fendrick is not thinking very seriously about a victory. New London has been his "jinx."

This is going to be a very sane Minnesota football season. At least, it will be that way at the start because, at least, the Gophers' followers have shaken themselves loose from the complex of long standing that their team is unbeatable.

Rating football teams on practice form is dangerous business, but, according to the United Press' Jim Emerson, critics generally agree Coach Duke Hayes of Marietta and Coach Yom Rogers at Denison have "it" this fall.

Gimbel Rolls 598 Total to Lead Scoring

Confectionary Keglers Score 2737 Count.

Paced by Charley Gimbel, who cracked the maples for a 598 total, including a 206 middle game, Gimbel's Confertionary keglers pounded out a 2737 count to set the scoring place in the Commercial C league at the Meder alleys last night.

Other high keglers for the Gimbel team, which took three games from the Lamb Lincos, were Adams, 220 and 572, and H. Gimbel, 550. Campbell shot a 211 and 593 for the Lincos.

Opening with a 225, Jim Dunn rolled out a 566 to pace Walter's Barbers to a clean sweep over the Hecht-Casey Coals, and Davis, with a middle game of 233, blasted a 556 for The News-Journal, but the Newspapermen bowed to the New Method Laundry in two tilts.

The Jackson Potato Chips won three games from the Art Rattan Works, Levering's Dairys took a pair of tilts from the Druschel Drugs and Shaw's Jewelers won two from the Meder Recreation club.

Defeats Unit No. 3, 14 to 8, in Game at Armory.

Brady's Unit No. 5 team won the championship of the WPA softball league yesterday by defeating Unit No. 3, 14 to 8, in the titular playoff at the Armory.

Woodberry and Jones did the pitching for the Brady team, and scattered seven hits. Six errors committed by their teammates kept them in trouble, however.

Unit No. 5 won the ball game and title in the third and fourth when it scored six runs in each inning. Woodberry led the attack for the winners with three hits. Kirt, Unit No. 5 second baseman, suffered a leg injury in the third inning and was forced to leave the game.

The champions will meet Unit No. 1 in a game at Johns park at 5 p. m. Wednesday. There will be a meeting after the game at 70½ North Main street. Entertainment, including a boxing match between Jake Armstrong and Albert Douglas, has been arranged at 7:30 p. m. Players and their families are invited.

Rain Helps Pirates in Tight Pennant Race

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LIKE the famous ill wind, the Pittsburgh Pirates would have you believe it's an ill rain that helps no one's pennant prospects.

The entire National League program of four doubleheaders was rained off the 1938 program yesterday and that, in its way, was somewhat more important than any of the three games played in the American League.

While the league-leading Pirates were deprived of a chance to improve their record at the expense of the Phillies, they marked up two games that can't be lost and two apiece that their rivals, the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds, can't win. They now have 14 to go and Chicago and Cincinnati 13 apiece.

Thus the standing of the pennant contenders looks like this:

Club	W.	L.	Pct.	*	x
Pittsburgh	81	57	.587		14
Chicago	78	61	.561	2½	13
Cincinnati	76	62	.551	5	13
New York	75	64	.540	6½	13

*Games behind.
xTo play.

If any of these three rivals should succeed in winning all its 13 games—and nothing appears more unlikely in view of the club's recent records—the Pirates would need only eight victories to dispose of the Giants, ten to eliminate the Reds or 11 to remain ahead of the Cubs.

In other words, the nearer they come to the end of the season, whether they play or not, the bigger that 3½ game lead looks.

On the ball field, yesterday's outstanding development was one of the most thorough lickings the champion Yankees have taken all season.

After clinching the pennant Sunday, with the aid of the weather, the Yanks dropped a 13-1 decision to the St. Louis Browns. Lou Gehrig played only an inning to preserve his consecutive game record and the rest of the regulars might as well have left with him.

They got only six hits off Howard Mills while the Browns nicked Wes Ferrell for four runs in the first two innings then cut loose with eight in the fifth.

Washington walloped Detroit 12-2 behind Pete Appleton's five-hit flinging and Hank Greenberg's chances of beating Babe Ruth's home run record were further weakened when he was held to a single.

Curers Cinch Plant Crown

Defeat Beads, 4-3, in Last Game of Play-off.

The Curing Department softballers won the championship of the inter-department softball league of the Mansfield Tire & Rubber company by defeating the Bead room, 4 to 3, yesterday.

Rangan hurling for the Curing room, allowed the Beads eight hits, but kept them well scattered. His teammates collected 16, with Bolinger throwing in a home run.

The Curers defeated the Main Office last week in the first game of the play-off to break the three-way tie for the title.

DICKEY WINS POLL

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Bill Dickey, New York Yankees, today was voted the most popular catcher in the all-American popularity poll being conducted by a cereal company.

Kansas City Wins, Reaches AA Finals

INDIANAPOLIS —(AP)— Kansas City was in the finals of the American Association Shaughnessy playoffs today—awaiting a foe to contest its bid for a place in the "little world series" against the International league's champs.

The final opposition will come from either Milwaukee or St. Paul. Rain has held up the Brewer-Saint series three consecutive days, but Milwaukee hopes to wind it up tonight with its fourth and clinching triumph. St. Paul, the league champion, has won only one game of the series. Kansas City scored its third straight victory here last night, 6 to 3, to win its series with fourth place Indianapolis, four games to two.

RED BIRDS EVEN SERIES, FINALS BILLED TONIGHT

AKRON.—(AP)—The Portsmouth Red Birds, once more hitting hard when it counts most, came back to the Rubber City today to meet Akron's Yankees in the final game of the Mid-Atlantic playoff series tonight.

Akron held a three to one edge over the Birds at the end of Saturday night's play, but Portsmouth snapped back into form, won Sunday and then took last night's contest 4 to 3.

BELLOISE KAYOES FOE

NEW YORK—Mike Belloise, 128½, New York, knocked out Joey Wach, 127¾, New York, (3).

Massillon to Present Crack Aerial Artists

Slusser, Toles Give Tigers Pair as Dangerous as Late Bylene-Anderson Duo.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor

WHEN the Massillon Tigers make their bi-annual appearance at Stadium field this week-end, Mansfield football fanatics will see a passing combination that bids well to emulate the feats of Mike Bylene and Andy Anderson.

Now, in case you are not up on your football of a couple of years ago, Bylene and Anderson formed what gridiron experts considered one of the greatest schoolboy aerial duos of that day.

Mansfield should remember the pair, too, for it was Bylene and Anderson who were so spectacular in Massillon's lop-sided victory over the Tygers that year.

Now It's Slusser, Toles.

This year Massillon is singing the praises of George Slusser and Freddie Toles, quarterback and left end, respectively.

Slusser's throws to Toles provided the Tigers' margin of victory over McKeesport, Pa., in their opener last week. Their connections on passes provided two of the Massillon touchdowns.

After romping 28 yards for the first score in the opening period, Slusser, who is a more versatile performer than the great Bob Glass, unwound his arm to shoot two perfect throws into Toles' arms for touchdowns in the next frame.

Toles took a 25-yard pitch from Slusser on the five to go across for the second of three Massillon touchdowns, and then gobbled up a throw of a similar distance on the 10 and raced across.

Coach Russ Murphy need not be told of the danger that is packed in Slusser's right arm. The Tyger coach was in the stands as Massillon handed McKeesport its first defeat in two years. He retains a mental picture of what transpired on the Massillon gridiron last Friday.

A tighter pass defense is being stressed by Murphy on the practice field this week. Judging from the statistics of Mansfield's inaugural, Murphy has reasons to suspect that a weakness exists in the present group. Akron West, although never a serious threat, completed seven out of nine throws.

Mansfield also showed that it can do a pretty good job pegigng pigskins, but whether the Tygers' passing game will be effective against Massillon remains to be seen.

A fast-charging line can cause a lot of damage to a passing attack, and Massillon has just exactly this, we understand.

One thing that is in Mansfield's favor in passing is that every back can throw. Perhaps not as well as Rich Nagle, who completed 10 out of 13 throws Saturday, but better than the average.

If the protection afforded the Mansfield throwers in the lid lifter is duplicated Saturday, Massillon may find that the Tygers, too, can strike hard through the air.

Job For Defense.

Mansfield's toughest job Saturday will be to cover Toles, Murphy believes Toles goes down the field so fast that once he catches up with the secondary, he is almost certain to pass it. He raced straight through the McKeesport secondary to grab his touchdown passes.

Liederkranz Paces Club League Scoring

Registers 2956 Total to Bag Three Wins, Tie for First Place In Handicap Circuit.

THEIR record showing five victories and one defeat, the Liederkranz woodmen are in the thick of things in the Club handicap bowling league.

The Liederkranz keglers strengthened their record last night when they walloped the maples for a 2958 total, which was good for three victories over the Optimists and high scoring honors of the night.

Led by Bill Donnellan's nifty 632, the Liederkranz put together games of 973, 1017, 968. Schmidt with a 608, and Michaels with a 602, were other high Liederkranz bowlers.

The Kiwanis club lost one decision to the Mansfield Athletic club, but remains in a first place tie with the Liederkranz club.

Heath's Homer Beats Macks

474 See Harder Register 17th Win of Season.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Young Jeff Heath, playing his first full season in the Cleveland outfit, today challenged Second Baseman Joe Gordon of New York for the title of the American League's most sensational freshmen player of the year.

While his teammates in general disappointed followers by a disastrous collapse from first-place form, Jeff since Aug. 1 has been pounding the ball at a terrific clip. Today he was batting .338 and held second place in individual batting averages in the league.

Heath's 17th home run of the season Monday with two runners on base enabled the Indians to defeat Philadelphia, 4 to 3, on four hits before 474 spectators, smallest Cleveland home crowd this year.

The three-run blow came in the first inning after Lyn Lary bunted safely and Bruce Campbell walked. The final Cleveland run scored in the fourth round on an error, single and outfield fly.

Mel Harder hung up his 17th victory against 10 defeats pitching for the Tribe although he allowed the A's 12 hits and had to be relieved by Johnny Humphries in the eighth inning.

Either Earl Whitehill or Al Milnar was to hurl for Cleveland today against Washington. Joe Krakauskas was scheduled to pitch for the visitors.

HOLD HEARING

Richland and Crawford Boards Act on Road Annexation.

Richland county commissioners and County Engineer Howard C. Sword were in Bucyrus today to meet with the Crawford county commissioners and engineer on a joint hearing of a petition to annex the Shelby-Tiro road to the state highway system.

Application for the annexation was filed several months ago by commissioners of both counties, but difficulties in obtaining right-of-way privileges in Crawford county delayed action by the state highway department.

Crawford county officials have obtained the right-of-way permits, however, and the state is expected to show prompt action in annexing the road, C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the Richland county commissioners, said today.

The route is 26 miles long, with only a short section in Richland county.

LEADERS SPURT AS MART PICKS UP MOMENTUM

Prices Up 1 to 5 Points as Hopes for European Peace Mount Hourly.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market's recovery picked up momentum today, as hopes for a peaceful way out of the German-Czech crisis mounted hourly. Leaders spurted 1 to 5 points, with the industrial average exceeding the previous day's gains by a fair margin.

Blocks of stock running to 5,000 shares in Chrysler changed hands, and leaders chalked up overnight gains of 1 to more than 2 points.

The advance gained headway as the forenoon progressed, with best prices being reached just before the noon hour. Steels, motors, coppers, chemicals, rubbers and blue chips were about the strongest groups.

Eastman Kodak soared 5 points, Philip Morris as much and Union Carbide and Union Pacific about 4. Du Pont, Crucible Steel, Johns-Manville and American Smelting were among the issues to climb 3 or more.

A long list of representative issues advanced 2 or more points. Included were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse, American Can, Santa Fe and Case.

HITLER TO GET BRITISH REPLY

Chamberlain Leaves Tomorrow to Give Official Answer to Nazi Demands.

plan in which they would have the support not only of the labor and liberal opposition but of some conservative members of the house of commons.

As regards the Godesberg meeting, it was recalled that Chamberlain went to Berchtesgaden last week ostensibly to tell Hitler the British viewpoint, and instead spent about two hours out of a total of two and a half listening to Hitler tell him what he intended to have, and at once.

Hence there was a natural suspicion that when Chamberlain meets Hitler at Godesberg tomorrow afternoon or Thursday, the fuehrer might have another surprise for him in the way of additional demands.

It was decided not to publish the exact plan until the Czechoslovak government had approved or rejected its officially, but it was understood that in its present form it was substantially as follows:

1. Sudeten areas where the German population was overwhelmingly great would be surrendered to Germany at once. A figure of between 75 and 80 per cent was mentioned. It was suggested that last summer's municipal elections would be a good measuring stick and that those who voted for the Sudeten German party would be regarded as wishing to become Nazis. There seemed room for considerable discussion on this point.

2. Other Sudeten areas would be grouped into cantonal or autonomous districts within the Czechoslovak state. The French suggested a plebiscite on this feature. The word plebiscite, however, is somewhat distasteful to the government because at a time when its official watchword was "no surrender" it angrily, or at least firmly, repudiated suggestions that it was considering a plebiscite.

3. There would be an international guarantee to the remainder of Czechoslovakia against attack, Great Britain to be one of the guarantors.

REPORT NIPPON THREAT FORCED BRITISH MOVE

Washington Told Japs Plan Invasion If British Send Aid to Czechs.

By ROBERT G. NIXON
(By INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — A paralyzing fear that her own great empire on which the sun never sets would be the sacrifice of another general war in Europe led Great Britain to acquiesce in the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

This disclosure of the stakes wagered in the behind-the-scenes diplomatic battle over the German-Czech crisis reached high official quarters today and was revealed to International News Service on responsible authority.

In the midst of the crisis last week, when the world feared Chancellor Hitler might at any moment give the order for an invasion of Czechoslovakia, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was informed by the British intelligence service of a secret plan of Japan to strike at Britain's empire in the Far East.

The bold stroke of Nippon, Washington was informed, was to be held in leash until Britain's armed strength became wholly involved in a war with France against Germany.

Then, this authoritative source revealed, the Japanese navy and strong expeditionary forces were scheduled to strike successively and swiftly at Hong Kong, Singapore, the Malay states, India and Australia.

In its strides, the Nipponese hordes, it was stated, planned to overrun The Netherlands East Indies, where are located priceless oil lands.

Wealthy Territory.

In the Malay states are the world's richest tin mines. Australia, still sparsely settled and with the surface of its resources and possibilities only scratched, would provide Japan with an unending source of food and wool and an outlet for her teeming population, it was pointed out. From India—fabulous, untold wealth and an inexhaustible source of man power.

Only by the might of its sea power, assured by the world's most powerful fleet, has England been able to keep a hold on this vast, sprawling oriental empire.

Japan counted, it was asserted, on a major European war involving England in Europe tying up the British fleet in European waters to blockade Germany, keep open its immediate sea lanes for food and munitions supplies and to watch Italy.

Without a fleet free to dispatch instantly to the Far East Britain's oriental empire would be a comparatively easy prize, according to high military and naval opinion.

Britain learned, it was stated, that the Japanese fleet, in its own waters as mighty as Britain's or the United States, has been kept entirely free of the present Sino-Japanese conflict.

Japan, the British intelligence reported, was prepared to halt its present war in China, keeping less than a half million men in China to hold the conquered lands, and, with a million campaign hardened troops under arms, its strong fleet and the Japanese nation keyed to war's effort, strike south toward the British possessions.

Already a considerable number of displays have been entered, Lodde said. The list includes coins, miniature elephants, antique furniture, postmarks and wood carving.

WORK TO START ON NEW STATION

Firemen Move No. 2 Apparatus; Razing of Structure Begins Thursday.

Construction work on the new No. 2 fire station, which will replace the present 30-year-old building will begin within the next few days.

Firemen were busy today moving equipment and other effects to the Central station in the city building where they will be temporarily housed until the new station is completed.

Thursday, Martin Hallabrin, Mansfield, who was awarded the contract for the construction, will begin razing the old frame building, Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist said.

The heating plant and equipment room will be located in the basement.

Hallabrin was awarded the contract on the general construction with the second low bid of $6,353, after the lowest bid had been rejected because of a technicality.

The heating contract went to E. F. Malone on a bid of $542 and the plumbing also to Malone whose price was $578. The contract for the electrical work was awarded to the Richland Electric company on a bid of $259.67.

Nist said today that he expected the building to be ready for occupancy by Dec. 1.

TAFT FAVORING CURB ON TAXES

Advocates Repeal of Profits Levy, Pay Poll Tax to 'Cure Unemployment.'

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Repeal of the undistributed profits tax and reduction of the pay roll levy without impairing old age pensions was advocated today by Robert A Taft, Republican U. S. senatorial candidate, to "cure unemployment."

"The greatest problem we have to face is unemployment, and unemployment can not be cured by relief alone," Taft asserted in a campaign speech broadcast last night.

"It must be cured by putting more men and women to work in private industry, and building up private industry to take care of them."

The Republican party, he added, "proposes to encourage men to go into business, to establish new industries, and to enlarge existing industries through a requisition of regulations and taxation." He then called for repeal of the undistributed profits levy and reduction of the impost on pay rolls

"Of course, adequate relief must be given to the unfortunate people who can't find work, until private employment is restored," he added.

"After five years of planned economy, after five years of autocratic power, the nation is worse off than it was in 1933," Taft chargd. "The New Deal has utterly failed to solve the problems of the nation and has no program except the demand for more power and the expenditure of vast amounts of borrowed money."

CZECH CABINET STALLING FOR TIME IN CRISIS

Bloody Border Clashes Create Added Tension; Russia Says She Can't Help.

evidence of Poland's effort to seize her share of Czechoslovakia. Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary now reported in Berchtesgaden is expected not only to ask transfer to Hungary of all Czech territories containing more than 75 per cent Hungarians but will be asked to give Hitler permission for German troops to march through Hungary.

The Czechs continue their military measures, having now well above 35 first-line divisions mobilized. A large red cross was belatedly placed on the roofs of all hospitals in Prague.

Scarcely anyone in the Czech capital can be found to agree that the French and British moves have ensured peace in Europe. On the contrary, the fear of war today has grown again comparable to immediately after Hitler's Nurnberg speech.

Prague Citizens Restless.

While the cabinet debated diplomatic policies, the citizens of Prague became increasingly restless under the tension.

Warnings of demonstrations against the Franco-British role in the negotiations brought extra squads of police in huge, open buses into the downtown area of the city. Crowds thronged the principal streets last night but there was no demonstrations.

Younger men who had watched friends called "back to duty" on northern and western fronts talked anxiously still of the possibility of war. Older men argued the political angle.

Public life of Prague went on normally, concentrated in the cafes and the coffee houses. The popular expression everywhere was: "Wait and see. The government will decide If war is necessary we will fight."

Order was being maintained in the provinces under a state of emergency, and no political disturbances were reported.

Bomb Customs House.

A new border incident was reported from Neusorge, near Braunau, where 15 men were said to have surrounded the customs-house and bombarded it with grenades.

Here Czechoslovak officials barricaded themselves and made no further effort to defend themselves until rocket signals brought help from a gendarmerie patrol.

Prague authorities said there was no doubt that the attacking forces came from Germany. All appeared to be dressed in civilian clothes.

The authorities said they had evidence that a number of the invaders were members of Konrad Henlein's "free corps," the mission of which apparently is to harrass the frontier.

Near Seiderberg, reports said, a band of Czechoslovaks fired on German customs officers from 450 feet while a second Czechoslovak detachment crossed the border

The Czechoslovaks were said to have fired machine guns at the German guards for an hour, wounding 17 of them, two seriously. The Czechoslovaks were said to have withdrawn, taking their wounded with them.

On the German side of the frontier, there was evidence that shots were fired by Czechoslovaks even after the Sudeten Germans were on German soil, clearly proving border violation.

Ready for War Again, Crowd Tells Duce.

UDINE, Italy —(U.P.)— Premier Benito Mussolini asked the Italian people in a speech today if they were ready to go to war again if necessary and was given a thunderous assent by a crowd of 50,000 gathered to hear him.

Italy, he said, has never been so strong on land, sea or in the air.

VOTE OF 6,000 SEEN ON BONDS

Fate of Million Dollar School Building Program in Hands of Electors Today.

being done in the First, Second and Third wards, The News-Journal's survey showed, while the lightest voting was in the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth wards.

Afternoon voting was expected to be even heavier in the First, Second and Third wards

As usual, the polls opened today at 6:30 a. m., and will remain open until 6:30 p. m. And, in accordance with election requirements, sales of liquor were prohibited until 7 p. m., a half hour after the polls close.

In August, the bond issue received its largest majorities in precincts of the First, Second and Third wards, which cast a 67 per cent vote for the bonds.

The question failed of a majority only in the Fifth ward, and there only by one per cent, and carried in the Fourth and Sixth wards and in Madison township precincts which are part of the city school district, but lacked the 65 per cent requirement.

The fact that the heaviest voting today was in the wards where the bond issue was most strongly favored, seemed to indicate that the bonds had a good chance of passing, according to observers.

Carrying on the campaign they waged since the decision was reached less than a month ago, to resubmit the bond issue, members of the city's Parent-Teacher associations were concentrating their efforts today on "getting out the vote."

It was through their efforts that large numbers of citizens who had failed to register or transfer agreed to qualify themselves to vote for the measure. The associations conducted a house-to-house campaign on behalf of the bond issue. There was little organized pre-election opposition to it

The following table shows the voting up to 10:30 this morning in 24 of the 53 precincts in the school district, as compiled by The News-Journal and booth workers:

Radio Inspires Indians to Stage Sit-Down Strike

JUNEAU, Alaska—(AP)—Harper Reed, dominion Indian agent for northern British Columbia, is wondering whether installing a radio at the Telegraph Creek winter school for Indian women was such a good idea.

All went well, Reed reported, until a score of Indians mushed into Telegraph Creek two weeks before the end of the beaver trapping season, and relaxed.

Ordered back to their trap lines, the leaders replied "We sit. We get what we want. Him city man all same—talking box say so."

Then Reed realized what had happened. The radio he had given the Indians had informed them of sit-down strikes in metropolitan centers. There was a peaceful settlement when Reed explained government rations wouldn't be continued without work.

SLASHES PRICE

Big Steel Cuts Rails $2 to $5 in Bid for Business.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Big steel bid today for more business from its one-time best customer, the railroads, by reducing prices of rails and accessories from $2 to $5 a ton.

In announcing the cut, the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, largest until of the giant U. S. Steel, also confirmed all other prices for the fourth quarter delivery.

Other producers were expected to step quickly into line with the price list and relieve some uncertainty which had developed due to the more than two weeks delay in the usual time for fixing final period quotations.

Coming as it did with employment, production and payroll levels slowly increasing in the industry, the move was viewed here as stabilizing both wages and prices

7,750 CHILDREN NEED OHIO AID

Federal-State Program Fails In Care for All, Robison Says.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—While the present federally aided state program for care of dependent children supports 9,000 more children than the former mothers' pension plan, there still remain 7,750 children in need of aid but unable to get it because of limited public funds.

This estimate was made today by Henry J. Robison, chief of the state division of public assistance.

Aid now is being given to 31,382 dependent children. In July, 1936, when the division began work, mothers' pensions were helping to support 22,500 children.

HAZARDS OF HEALTH

John C. Davis, Druggist

There are certain occupations which definitely affect one's health. It may be that your job is one that rates A1 with insurance companies and yet one that saps your nervous energy and leaves you physically drained, nervous and weary.

There are rules for living under such a strain, as necessary, as important to your health as certain physical guards thrown around hazardous occupations.

One of these is to get a doctor's advice. Tell him frankly what your job is—how it affects you, what your reactions are to the weariness which drags at your health.

His skill and advice are all important. An all around man is your doctor. He knows life, he knows people. He can help you surmount your particular difficulty.

If medication is prescribed, be sure that the pharmacist is a capable, skilled, trained man.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1938.

A liberal is known for his liberality—with other people's money.

It remains to be seen whether civilized man is bright enough to operate the economic system he has made.

It is a very ancient delusion, practiced by the most brilliant of the old Greek states just before their decline, that a country can profit by exiling its best minds.

Now It's to Be $30-Every-Thursday

A SMALL group of Ohio men are following the lead of California in attempting to organize support of a $30-a-week pension plan, involving use of scrip, or $1 state warrants, instead of actual money.

It is the idea of promoters of this scheme that the state issue $30 in scrip each Thursday to all unemployed persons above 50 years of age, and that these warrants be kept valid by placing a state-issued 2-cent stamp on them each week—so that, by the end of a year the state would have received $1.04 for each scrip "dollar" thus issued.

While it might be assumed that the impracticability of any such fantastic scheme would be very generally recognized, an earlier flocking of support of the $200-a-month Townsend pension plan argues otherwise.

Entirely aside from the bankrupting effect of such a plan, on either the state or the nation, two sections of the federal Constitution seem to stand in the way of such state "money" as is proposed in the plan.

The first is: "The Congress shall have power to coin money, regulate the value thereof;" the second is a prohibition on the state to emit "bills of credit," defined as "a bill designed to circulate as money, on the credit of the state."

Organizing activities connected with the Townsend plan opened opportunities for a large number of "workers" to draw good pay in salaries or commissions for a considerable period, at the expense of elderly persons who were attracted by the promise of $200 a month, without being able to see the impossibility of carrying through any such a grandiose scheme.

It is quite likely that this $30-every-Thursday "plan" will quickly move toward similar organization efforts, also with profits for its promoters, and it seems only fair that prospective dupes should be warned against it—on the basis that, while it may sound attractive, IT CAN'T BE DONE.

Well-Governed Towns.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., takes a bow. A Hollywood movie producer who wanted to copy a model town asked a group of political scientists which was the best-governed town in the United States. They were asked to limit their search to communities of about 50,000 population.

Men from the universities of Michigan, Illinois, Chicago, Southern California, California, Pennsylvania, New York and Minnesota made the study that resulted in the choice of Kalamazoo as best-governed, with Winnetka, Ill., East Cleveland, O., and Austin, Tex., following in that order.

That is a title worth striving for. The cities named may well feel proud. The political scientists, however, should not stop with naming the town. Citizens of a great many other communities now want to know all about the government of these four, their taxes, schools, community activities, and all the rest.

Lower Car Prices Probable.

EXCEPT for the continued threat of labor troubles in the automotive production field, the new season in this industry gives promise of making large contribution to reduction of unemployment and restoration of prosperity.

While manufacturers' announcements are not yet being made in a definite way, all word from apparently authentic sources indicates some price reductions on 1939 models—with repetition of the promise of "more car for the money than ever before."

Within another month or six weeks motorists will have opportunity to see for themselves what manufacturers believe will make greatest appeal to prospective purchasers of new cars.

If friendly employe-employer relationships can be maintained in the motor industry, and if sales of new cars can reach well toward the three-million mark, as now forecast, a substantial movement toward better general conditions will be inevitable.

Six Miles a Minute! Why?

THOSE two British daredevils who fought it out on the Utah salt flats last week with their freak racing automobiles got the record up to almost six miles a minute. Covering the measured mile at that incredible rate, Capt. Eyston recaptured the title he had lost the day before to John Cobb.

The speed duel began on August 27. On that date Eyston broke the record he himself had established the year before. The increase was 37.29 miles an hour. Then Cobb got busy, pushing the speed up again, achieving a rate of 350.2 miles per hour. Eyston wiped out that mark with his 357.5 speed.

What's it all about and where does it get them? It's a thrill for drivers and spectators and a triumph for the designers and manufacturers of the cars with their amazing engines, tires and other special equipment. But like Alice and the Red Queen "they go awfully fast without getting anywhere."

Maine's Early Elections.

THE question is sometimes asked, "Why Does Maine elect congressmen in early September instead of on the customary election date"?

That is merely another of the holdovers from "horse-and-buggy days" when bad roads made November traveling impractical in Maine and many other parts of the country.

These earlier Maine elections also gave opportunity to originate the old-time Republican slogan, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation," which hasn't been entirely dependable in more recent years.

Belief is growing that 17,000,000 Republicans may not have been so wrong after all.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — From gleanings here and there we are able to present something of a picture of what the New Deal strategists expect will result from the so-called purge.

Keep in mind there is another side to the picture, but this is THEIR side.

Some of the older heads, who had buttered their bread with politics for many a year, knew before the purge started that defeat was certain in several instances and very likely in others. They knew the defeats would be interpreted as setbacks for the administration. What was to be gained?

First off, as these people see it, a Democratic senator listed for the purge will be a marked man in the future. That may or may not influence his voting in the next congress. New Deal figures participating in the purge suspect it will. The party loyalty of those "marked" senators has been questioned by the head of the party.

These marked senators may consider that blind following of party leadership is not party loyalty. They may hold that true party loyalty compels them to vote against administration proposals they consider unwise.

May Rise As 'Martyrs.'

CONTRARY to some New Deal expectations, an aura of martyrdom may attach to them, increasing their independence and benefiting them in other ways. Senator Clark of Missouri, for instance, was examined more closely as a presidential prospect after his name was "posted." Nevertheless, New Deal sources predict that a Democrat accused of disloyalty will be a "very uncomfortable" Democrat.

It is within the realm of possibility that the marked senators may meet real trouble from Republican opposition in November. Here is the situation they foresee.

The popular name of Roosevelt won't be at the head of the ticket this November to help along. Moreover, in some states the controlling vote lies with the Progressives, who for the most part have been with the New Deal since 1932. They have followed Roosevelt. Now, New Deal sources point out, Mr. Roosevelt or some of his lieutenants have stamped these senators as no longer progressives in the Roosevelt sense.

Another Iowa Test.

ONE MAN with whom we talked cited Iowa as a possible example. Iowa was predominantly a Republican state until 1932. It had a roving progressive vote which had been G. O. P. so long that it was considered party property. In 1932 it swung heavily to Roosevelt and again in 1936 to such a degree that a veteran Republican senator, Louis J. Dickinson, was defeated.

This year Dickinson is opposing Senator Guy Gillette who won the Democratic nomination after being marked for the purge. It is true that Roosevelt never spoke out against Gillette and after the primary invited him to the White House. But Gillette was on the list and that fact, the informan said, is contributing real advantage to Dickinson, the Republican candidate, who is an energetic campaigner.

That same condition, it was argued, may weigh against Senator Tydings of Maryland, actively opposed by the president, and against Senator McCarran of Nevada, a purge candidate who escaped active presidential opposition. McCarran is opposed in the general election by former Senator Oddie, who fell before McCarran by a narrow 1,700-vote margin in the Democratic landslide of 1932.

All in all, as the purge management seems to see it, those independent Democratic senators who outride the purge may survive the general elections by narrow margins, so that their independence may be decidedly tempered. And if they lose, it will be much easier for Roosevelt forces to control selection of delegates to the national convention in 1940.

"ARMS PROBLEM"!

The Human Side of the News

—By EDWIN C. HILL

NOTHING could better have served the dramatic unities than the transfer of Charlemagne's sword from Vienna to Germany, as a climatic detail of Nuremberg ceremonies. In his book, "Mein Kampf," and in a hundred revelatory declarations, Hitler has made it clear that he considers himself the heir of Charlemagne, and that he intends to rebuild the Holy Roman Empire.

Voltaire remarked that it wasn't holy and it wasn't Roman and it wasn't an empire, which may or may not be true, but at any rate it is still some kind of a mystic entity, a dream hangover of the ages, which has steamed up more Fuehrers than any sharply delimited green, red or yellow area in the geography books.

Napoleon was chief among them. Riffling back through the history books, I find that Napoleon had been acutely bitten by the Charlemagne bug. He wrote: "Because, like Charlemagne, I unite the crown of France to that of Lombardy, and my empire marches to the east." These historic germ-carriers infect each other. We find Hitler picking up the "Drang nach Osten," in "Mein Kampf."

It seems probable that Napoleon and Charlemagne have induced more power psychoses than any men in history. Hitler doubles in the two roles. It was Napoleon who wrecked the empire, and it is another little corporal up from the ranks who is out to refashion it with expensive additions and betterments and a much gaudier set-up all around.

THE entire saga of Carolingian romance never produced showmanship comparable with that of the marching, singing hosts of Nuremberg, with all their glittering panoply of empire. Are they empire-builders or are they just some more "toymakers of Nuremberg"? That goes into the suspense file.

A glance back at the epic cycle of the Charlemagne legends gives an interesting alignment of the German and French minds. France certainly had more right to brag about Charlemagne than any other nation, yet it was Germany who took over his sword and who fanned up the vast body of Carolingian legend, and fused it with their own Odin myth—Odin, the god of war, who ruled in Valhalla and sent his two black ravens all over the world keeping the home office informed.

Their clever fabulists elaborated and perpetuated every fragment of legend they could lay their hands on. Theirs was the tale of Charlemagne's rising from the dead, at the time of the Crusades; of the serpent who, in return for his kindness, gave him a potent charm and a hundred others, all made in Germany—and odd it seems that this should become a famous label for instruments of precision.

The Italians also declared themselves in in a big way on the Charlemagne legend, and in their Latinized versions of the epic linked it with the dreams of a someday resurgent Italy.

And here's the interesting contrast. The tough-minded French took the Chanson de Roland, and all the rest, for what they were—fascinating folk lore with remote historic antecedents, aesthetically and historically interesting, but having nothing to do with France's highly particularized and realistic concerns. The Charlemagne legend would seem to belong in France, if anywhere, and it has been built up in Germany and Italy.

VESTIGIAL feudalism and romanticisms is confined to the three totalitarian challengers of modern democracy — Germany, Italy and Japan. The most revealing studies of Japan now appearing show the origins and motivations of dominant militarism rooted deeply in the Japan of the ancient Samurai.

It is the ancient romantic and not the modern industrial and scientific Japan which moves on China. During the World war, the late Thorsten Veblen repeatedly wrote that the desperate problem of civilization in the post-war decades would be to liquidate the past. He said it would rise again and menace the world.

And this, it seems, swiftly has come to pass. Charlemagne's sword is enshrined at Nuremberg. But the Holy Roman Empire, before it was wrecked in the brutal power complex of the new state sovereignty, which Machiavelli sardonically and accurately appraised, marked a noble aspiration.

Dante and Erasmus, fervently and prayerfully invoked it as the one desperate hope for a world order which alone could save civilization. It failed, as did the League of Nations, similarly freighted with great spiritual aspirations. The world of oxcarts and sailing ships could somehow worry along without a world order. Can we?

Health Advice

Philosophic View of Sickness and Health.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN MANY of the inquiries I receive, as well as in discussions with people on the subject of sickness and health, I discern an attitude of mind which is a sort of belief in magic. I realize these people would be very much surprised at this and would probably resent it if it were announced to them bluntly, but at least there is a lack of understanding of the fundamental principles on which treatment in modern medicine is based.

The modern scientific physician judges the problem of a sick person, not by rule of thumb, not by empiricism, and not by applying some dogma set down in a textbook, but by applying the principles of anatomy, physiology, pathology and bacteriology.

Our knowledge in these departments is today wonderfully complete. There are, it is true, some fields of the unknown, but for practical purposes there never was a time in the world's history when such a large body of intricate and dependable information was available.

I am going to try, in the articles during the next week or two, to give my readers this viewpoint and to state in simple language the fundamental conceptions of modern medicine. In following this, I believe that the reader will gain a far clearer conception of what he really wants to know from his doctor.

First, let us get a general philosophical view of man so far as his body is in relation to his universe. He is an animal differing only in inventiveness, mental resource and adaptability, from other animals.

The human organism is adapted to the use of the other products of the earth to furnish him energy through the functions of digestion, respiration, circulation and metabolism. It is adapted also to the reproduction of its own kind.

It is adapted as no other animal's is, to long-range planning, to discovering the secrets of the universe, to turning them to its own uses, to living life by reason—in short, to what we call thinking.

On all of these levels the body is liable to get into trouble.

All over the world enemies lie in wait for it — themselves unconsciously preying on it in the never ending struggle for existence. Germs, parasites, poisons, heat, cold, fire, automobiles, poor and deficient food, are among the tangible forces that are arrayed against the smooth workings of that wonderful mechanism.

The very processes of reproduction themselves may turn against it.

Ambition may carry a man to the sky and then fling him crushed and formless to the earth.

Furthermore, these wonderful processes wear down in the course of time. A hundred years from now there will scarcely be a score of the present inhabitants of the earth carrying on.

Professor Pearl gives a hundred years as the upper limit of the span of human life. All will have ceased functioning through some inherent degeneration of the organs. In some, the hereditary nature of the material will have hastened this, so, quite unfairly but quite remorselessly, they will have been carried off long before the others.

To oppose these processes, medical science has devised many successful schemes. Sometimes all it can do is to stave off the inevitable. Sometimes it fails completely. But there is no magic.

A Farmer's Diary

Corn-Cutting Time

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ALL up and down the land, on the hills, through the valleys march the shocks of new-cut corn. The crop is good this year, and they stand, tall and large, in straight, long even rows across the landscape.

For two weeks or more, at intervals, my neighbors were busy early and late, cutting the tall stalks of grain and placing them in shock. The fields were transformed from an even, tasseled reach with heavy, sagging ears, to one peopled with a thousand huddled heaps, standing motionless under the serene autumn sun.

I got my old corn knife from the granary, and went to cut my own little crop of sweet corn. I took two stalks or more of the fourth and fifth rows from the open side, bent them over, and tied their tops firmly above the ears, with fall grass that grew far too plentifully to suit my idea of thrifty culture.

In my left arm I held the corn, while with my right I wielded the keen shining blade, cutting the stalks evenly a foot above the ground. When my arm was full and the fodder dragged heavily, I placed it straight against the stalks I had tied together. The next armful I stood opposite the first, and thus the shock began.

It is always a pleasant sound to hear the rustling of the blades, and see the white, new pith appear when each hill is cut. I enjoy the fresh corn fragrance, rising from the severed stump, and like the touch of the cool moisture that slowly forms upon the slanting wound of stubble.

Although the stalk is hard—the arms and legs and body muscles ache toward the close of day—it has its compensations. It is a hardy, honest task, out in the cool fall air and sunshine. The weariness it brings is in a purposeful task—that of providing food for man and beast. It whets the appetite for homecooked food, brought from the herd, the garden and the field. It furnishes sound, refreshing sleep, that comes best from outdoor labor.

IT'S A TREAT I've been having—reading Nathalie Sedgwick Colby's story of her life, "REMEMBERING." (Little, Brown & Co., Pub.) Bred of a family that was in at America's borning . . . married for many a year to Bainbridge Colby, President Wilson's secretary of state . . . she's seen all the fine doings and famous folk of our time and made them part of herself.

And now she's pouring it out in a full, passionate tale, plied with color as a Spanish shawl — and you sitting there, breathless, as the great, proud pageant of them come sweeping down the years, with their heads high or bowed . . . bursting with great draughts of belly laughter . . . glowering magnificently . . . or tying a smile about their hearts, strangling close, lest they should break.

Rich stuff for anyone—and a godsend to those starved souls who sit in dusty corners, measuring life by a hangnail. Every page must spill new warmth and wonder to such an one—"red sails against the sunset" . . . the whole star-studded sky where, before, there was only a ceiling.

And the best of it all, is the way these great lives lie open to traffic. No standing aside with a "NO TRESPASSING" sign feeling that one's own tears or tantrums are something Special and Rare. Midway in the book, there's a line about that. Speaking of those years when she was still a marvelling girl, tongue-tied before Fame, Natalie Colby says—

"I LEARNED THAT . . . GREAT MEN ARE INCLUSIVE. NO FENCES AROUND THEM. IF THERE'S A FENCE ANYWHERE, RUN AWAY! YOU CAN BE SURE SOMETHING INSIDE IT HAS GONE TO SEED."

"No fences" to the truly great; you've noticed it yourself, haven't you? That quiet, little woman in the queer hat who talked to you so friendly like, the night when you were daft with grief—saying goodbye to your darling. The plain, comforting words that, somehow, took the worst sting out of it all. As if she'd gone over the road, too, and knew all the hard turnings.

Yet, for the life of you, you couldn't remember, after, just what it was she said. Or even the looks of her. Somehow, all that didn't seem to matter then. Looks and words—you were free of all that—talking there together, with her heart open to you as a homey room, an' you resting in it.

And 'twas only long after, when you heard that she was a great lady with a world-famous name, that a strangeness came over you. To think that you'd been talking things out to her . . . just the two of you, sitting there together, sharing the hurt of it, with her as plain as any old shoe!

"No fences"—not with the real folk. They've lived too much for that. Lived so tall that they've seen that life is all of a piece, with its joy and its sorrow, its fame and its shame. So why should any of us be trying to hedge ourselves apart? They never do, the truly great ones. Always they'll be the first to show you their own pain or their own blunder if it will help yours . . . the first to say "I'm sorry" if they're in the wrong.

"Something gone to seed" in those folk who live behind fences—that's a true word, too. Or perhaps it's a lack of anything that could have gone to seed, that's ailing them. Their own hollowness—maybe that's what they're wanting to hide.

You've seen it, too — haven't you?—how it's those who've never had much in their lives, of breeding or possessions or experience, who are always making the big show in public . . . calling attention to themselves with their biggety dressing . . . or fighting with the waiter . . . or shoving others around. Yes, it's little people they are, inside . . . and scared that someone will discover their weakness! So up goes the fence.

But the Real Ones never bother. For they've learned long since that human weakness is as good a bond for binding folk together as strength. Maybe even better!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If the party who left a large brief-case, crammed with manuscript clippings and notes, on an Erie commuters train last night will communicate with this department I'll explain where he may get it back.

He left it in the smoking car of a train that pulled out of the Chambers street station at 5:40 p. m. and your correspondent, alertly grasping the situation, ran after him to no avail. So the case reposed for a while in our possession and it is a fascinating repositor of the most stimulating and intriguing literary bric-a-brac you are likely to encounter in a month of commuting from Manhattan.

It contains, among other things, a most interesting assortment of biographical data on celebrities, voluminous notes set down in longhand which are somewhat hard to read (he writes almost as badly as I do) and a sheaf of articles torn from such publications as the Saturday Evening Post, Ken, and Collier's.

THERE was, for instance, a newspaper account of the now celebrated brawl between Ernest Hemingway and Max Eastman, two authors whose opinions of one another and a difference in political convictions led to a most exciting impasse in a publisher's office last season. With this was a copy of that rather breezy appraisal of the late O. O. McIntyre published in a national weekly shortly before the Man from Gallipolis, Ohio, died. Also there was a dissertation on George S. Kaufman's amazing proclivities for making money on a street that has been aptly titled Rue Regret, meaning Broadway.

There were some two dozen telegrams, some of them vastly humorous and all read by your correspondent, and, lastly, there were character studies of three people, two men and a girl, probably intended for some work of fiction, for they were stationed on a rubber plantation in the tropics, and all lived happily together. It does not suggest a triangle, I must hasten to add, nor is it one of Noel Coward's little arrangements which he styles "Design for Living." Further than this I do not feel authorized to go. The man no doubt will reclaim his property, and he might resent my giving away his plot if he decides to complete his story.

I SUPPOSE I should experience some twinge of conscience for prying into this gentleman's papers. (I had to find the owner's name, you know.) But the only emotion that stirs me is a mingled one of excitement and interest. Having this case in possession imposed no hardship, but, as temporary guardian, so to speak, I felt justified in perusing each paper to the fullest, and I may as well add that I enjoyed every minute of it. Indeed, I was keenly disappointed when I came to the end, as one is always disappointed when a good book comes to an end.

Most of the articles I had previously read. But, after they are returned, I suppose I shall be condemned to months, maybe years, of peering into magazines looking for three characters on a rubber plantation—two men and a woman, in the strangest predicament you can imagine. It's a swell idea, and I hope it clicks.

I certainly have enjoyed the preview.

Onion Syrup For Colds.

If you are anywhere around 40, the term "onion syrup" will mean something to you. When you were a child, your mother made it by pressing sugared sliced onions between two dinner plates, with a flatiron on them. You had to take it in a big tablespoon two or three times a day. It was for your cold and it certainly did the business. For thousands of years onion syrup has been a panacea for a bad cold. It is one of the universal folk medicines that have persisted into this day of science.

And now science has surrendered. The scientists say that onions contain some chemicals which relieve the irritation and in some way kill the bugs that cause bad colds.—Emporia Gazette.

CHAPTER 46

Instead of Nick, who was supposed to be waiting at the window to catch Noel as she dropped, it was Bill.

"Jus' what I tho't," the bullet-headed man ejaculated, as he still held Noel's arm in his powerful grasp.

"Let me go," Noel cried, trying vainly to wrench her hand from his grip.

"I'll let you go when I get youse back in de house," he exclaimed firmly. The next minute he had lifted her to his huge shoulder and was carrying her back into the house, back up the stairs to the room where she had been a captvie.

Where could Nick be? Why had he failed her, Noel asked herself the questions desperately.

The two men who had been on guard outside the door stared at Bill in open-mouthed astonishment. "Jumped outen the window," Bill explained. "But I was layin' for her."

"A darn good thing you was," one of the men commented.

Back in the garish room, Noel threw herself on the couch, and beat with desperate fists against the pillows, fighting back the tears. She wouldn't give way. She wouldn't. But she was much nearer the breaking point than she knew.

Suddenly she realized that the blond young man had come quietly back in the room. He didn't even glance at her.

Noel sat up. "I'm sure you were trying to help me," she began, "and I'm grateful."

"Please don't talk," he said in a hoarse whisper.

Noel sensed a note of unsteadiness in his voice. She now knew without doubt that he was on her side. This gave her a little ray of hope. If he had tried to help her once, wouldn't he try to again? But for the present she decided to do as he had told her so many times. Keep silent.

The night wore on. Noel sat still as long as she could. Then she rose and defiantly went to the window. The stars were giving way to the first faint streaks of dawn.

She expected to be commanded to come away from the window, but instead, when she turned back the young man was looking at her, a surprising warmth in his eyes. She came back and stood near him.

"What is your name?" she asked. "You see, if—if I get out of this situation, I'll want to know it."

"I can't think why," he said, his voice growing sullen again.

"I can think of a dozen reasons," Noel said. Then added, "But of course if you won't tell me your name—"

"Listen," the blond young man began, but he was interrupted by the abrupt opening of the door. The gray-haired man came in followed by Bill. "Let herself down de windo'," Bill was murmuring. "Woulda been gone by now—but I been awaitin' for hours."

"That's enough, Bill," the other man ordered. He looked at the blond young man, his face grim and threatening. "You'll get yours, Vincent. You'll lose your life just because of a pretty face. Well—men have done that before, and probably will again." He shrugged and turned to Noel. "This is your last chance to write that note. Are you ready?"

"You wanted me to write the note to my uncle?" she asked.

He nodded grimly. "And be quick about it."

"My uncle is in Chicago. It would take much longer to write him. Besides, my money is here."

"In your name?" the man questioned.

She nodded.

"Then all you'd have to do is to write a check?"

Noel nodded again. She was going to write the check. Nick had failed her. There wasn't anything else she could do now but give in, although Nick had warned her that they wouldn't release her even then.

"What bank?" came the quick question. She told him and a check was brought immediately. "Write it out for $50,000, and be quick about it," came the curt command.

Fifty thousand! That would take about all Noel had. She had planned to do so much with that money. She took the pen, drew the check near and began writing.

She was filling in the amount when the door was thrown open and a voice cried: "Hands up!"

It was Nick. He was standing there with a revolver in both hands, one leveled at each man.

"You double-crossing, lying—"

"Shut up!" Nick held the guns steadily, while he gave instructions to the blond young man, barking them out in his tight-lipped voice. "Tie them up—roll them over in a corner—do a good job and do it quick." Then he told Noel to go downstairs and get into the red car standing in the driveway.

Noel lost no time in obeying. Outside the door, the two men who had been on guard were lying securely bound. Noel hardly saw them.

Ten minutes later, Nick and the blond young man joined Noel in the car. Nick took the wheel, driving slowly at first, because there didn't seem to be a road, just a sort of rough lane through a corn field. It seemed to Noel that they were heading right into a barbed-wire fence. She watched in alarm.

Just before they reached the fence, Nick got out of the car, and did something mysterious to a tall post, inside the field, which had numerous wires at the top. Suddenly the part of the fence standing directly in front of the car, slid to the ground. Nick drove the car over it. Noel saw that this part of the fence was evidently controlled by an electric switch. No one ever would have suspected that it was a gate.

Nick didn't take time to close the fence again, but began driving rapidly and soon the car was on a highway.

When they reached a part of the road where there was some scattered traffic, Nick slowed up the car, ordered the young man to get out, first warning him to keep his mouth closed.

He stepped lightly from the slow moving car, raised his hand in salute. Then Nick was driving rapidly again.

He was an expert driver. The car simply ate up the miles. But when they were at last on the outskirts of the city, he had to slow down again. It certainly wouldn't do to get arrested for speeding.

This gave Noel a chance to ask some of the questions she had pondered over for so long. First she asked the name of the blond young man who had helped them. She knew part of his name, but that wouldn't enable her to find him and reward him as she expected to do.

Nick told her that his name was Ray Vincent. Then demanded brusquely: "What's it to you?"

Noel ignored his question. "What about the Garwoods? Why was I under suspicion?"

Nick was silent a moment. Then said: "Suppose you might as well know now since you're not going to—" he broke off then, and resumed after a moment. "You see, the real Fay Garwood is dead. The woman in her house is Agnes Barnes, who was Mrs. Garwood's maid. It was easy enough for Agnes to step into Fay Garwood's shoes when she died in a little foreign town where she was unknown, and where she was buried under the name of her maid." Nick stopped then and gave all his attention to the wheel. Noel saw that they were now leaving the city behind. "Where are you going?" she exclaimed in alarm.

Nick shrugged and went on with his story. "When Agnes and Hichens used all the cash Mrs. Garwood had on hand, a considerable amount, they came over here to plan some way to get more money. They were handicapped until you came along and they found to their joy that your handwriting was virtually identical with the real Fay Garwood's."

Noel was almost stunned by Nick's revelation. But she didn't have time to give them much thought now. She was too anxious over Nick's intentions. "I insist on knowing why you didn't stop in town," she said firmly.

"I'll be a hunted man from now on," Nick told her. "Have to get out of the country at once. And I'm taking you with me."

When you wash your new housecoat, if you will add a little glycerine to the final rinse water, the garment will be softer, easier to iron, and will keep that sleek "new" feel. Glycerine, you know, is widely used in silk and rayon processing, and plays an important part in keeping the pristine freshness of these fabrics when laundered.

Cautious Parents Doom Youth

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What kind of early youth do you suppose those parents led who want to deprive their girls and boys of all the joy and responsibility to which youth is entitled?

It's amazing the number of letters this column receives about "strict parents." A complacent mother will write to say that she intends to bend every effort to keep her daughter "unspotted from the world." She goes on to say that she has seen so many unhappy marriages among young people, she would prefer that Mary or Dorothy remain home with her all her life, rather than take the chance of adding to another unhappy marriage.

This lady forgets entirely that the question of her daughter's marriage is the daughter's problem. The mother can help and hope that her daughter marries well, but it's the girl who makes the vows.

Do parents ever stop to think that their mistaken caution dooms their daughters to lonely spinsterhood? The girls never know any boys, so what chance have they of getting a husband? Love, marriage, home, children—all must go into the discard, while the parents see evil lurking in every high school dance, and every soda fountain, for that matter.

Apart from the fact that these over-zealous parents cripple their children's lives, they, at the same time, are depriving the country of something invaluable—the clear-eyed point-of-view of youth.

As Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has said:

"Not enough people yet realize that upon the economic condition of young people today depends the state of the nation tomorrow."

What help for the future can be expected from young people whose parents insist upon prolonging their infancy? In addressing a youth conference, which opened in New York recently, Adolph A. Berle, jr., assistant secretary of state, said:

"Passionate beyond measure, today, is the desire of free peoples for a world free from fear. This means a world of order, in which humanity accepts a rule of reason, law and morals, and not of force."

Sauces Dress Up All Dishes

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

IT IS worthwhile taking a little trouble to prepare a good sauce which will make a simple dish attractive, an elaborate dish even richer. There are, of course, certain basic recipes, but, by varying the flavor, infinite variety can be obtained. Knowing that nearly every woman has a pet sauce recipe, we asked a group of our readers to give us theirs.

One reader dresses up puddings with a nice pineapple sauce. It is made by boiling a half cup of sugar and the same amount of water together for five minutes. Add a small can of crushed pineapple, mix well together and cool. When quite cold, add one or two drops of peppermint essence. The same reader comes through with a delicious cocoanut sauce. This needs an ounce of butter, an ounce of flour, teaspoon of shredded cocoanut, one-half pint of milk, one-half pint of cold water and two tablespoons of sugar. Melt butter in a pan. Stir in the flour and beat until smooth. Add the water and milk, mixed, but adding only half at a time. Now stir in the cocoanut and sugar, then bring to boil.

Fudge Sauce.

Fudge sauce is always a favorite, and here is an excellent recipe for it. Ingredients include one-half cup each light corn syrup and sugar, one-quarter cup cocoa, two tablespoons cold water, one tablespoon each cornstarch and butter, sauce and vanilla. Cook corn syrup and sugar and cocoa for five minutes. Mix cold water and cornstarch. Add to the hot mixture. Cook five minutes. Add butter and flavoring. Serve hot or cold.

Butterscotch sauce is another old timer that is still performing wonders when it comes to dressing up a plain pudding. This recipe requires one and one-third cups brown sugar, two-thirds cup corn syrup, four tablespoons butter, three-eights cup heavy cream and three-eights cup milk. Put sugar, corn syrup and butter in saucepan, bring to boiling point and boil to 250 F. or until a soft ball may be formed when tried in cold water. Add the cream and milk.

Orange sauce is an elaborate sauce, one that is worth all that is put into it. Ingredients include grated rind of one-half orange, juice one-half lemon, one-half cup orange juice, one-third cup sugar, few grains salt, two egg yolks, two egg whites and one teaspoon vanilla. Mix grated rind, fruit juices, sugar, salt and egg yokes, beaten slightly. Put on flame and stir constantly until mixture thickens. Add gradually, while beating constantly, two egg whites, beaten until stiff. Cook and add flavorings.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

I'M HOME again, and, believe me, the old town never looked so good before. The journey home was uneventful. Consuelo and I spent much of the time resting and reading. We both have a busy time ahead of us, and we both knew that the boat trip would be the only chance to rest.

Eileen went to Southampton with us, so did my doctor friend. We found nice cables from home in our state room. My folks cabled me, and so did Madame and Howard. Several of the firms with whom Madame does business sent us lovely gifts to the boat, so we had books galore, some lovely perfume and other things.

Consuelo spent some time studying her role, and I acted as prompter. A well-known pianist was on board, and he offered to act as her accompanist so that she could rehearse her songs. The music of the new show is entrancing, and I am sure it will make a huge hit. The scene of the play is laid in Hungary, and there are some grand gypsy songs and tunes.

Lost Four Pounds.

I had made up my mind to diet while on board, and I did, too, despite the marvelous food. I did this by having breakfast and luncheon in the stateroom, which meant that I didn't have to look at the menu and test my will power. I had fruit for breakfast and a big salad for luncheon so that I could eat a good dinner. Not only did I not gain, but I lost four pounds coming back, which gives me a good idea of how I must have been eating while I was in Europe. Of course, I spent plenty of time in the gym and also in the baths, and that helped, too.

The new clothes demand a new

line, and so there is need for new slips if one wants to look right in the latest frocks. Here is one of the lovely new slips with the high camisole top that is seen on evening gowns. The entire camisole is of ecru lace. An elastic ring through the bottom draws it up high under the bust. The lace terminates in a V back, the narrow shoulder straps criss-crossing in back to meet it. The fabric is eggshell crepe.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WITH A GESTURE which I was careful Philip Vertizen did not see, I turned over to Lillian the burden of answering his audacious proposal that Olina leave the farmhouse and go with himself and Noel and an "impeccable chaperone", so that the work on Noel's operetta could proceed.

She did not fail me. "My dear Philip!" she said. "Is it your memory or your reason that has fled? Didn't we tell you that the chief had provided this sanctuary for Queen Olga and her daughter? What could we say to him if we permitted one of our charges to leave the house?"

"I suppose you are right," he said heavily, "—"

Olina Cannot Leave.

"'But me no but'" Lilliam quoted impishly, "and I'll tell you a way out of this that has just flashed into my incomparable brain cells. Olina cannot leave the farmhouse, but if Mrs. Graham's housewifely ability can provide accommodations for him—although the farmhouse is crowded now, I grant you—I do not see why Noel could not come here until it is safe for the queen and her daughter to go free again."

"Why should it be necessary for Noel so to trouble Mrs. Graham?" Philip Vertizen demanded. "Why could he not come over every day, and stay at the hotel with me?"

"Because, dear, native friend," she replied, "the chief wishes all communications between the outside world and the farmhouse to be reduced to the 'irreducible minimum'. If Noel comes here, he will be incommunicado. You neither can see him nor telephne him until he gets ready to leave again. I really am risking the chief's displeasure by consenting to his coming here at all, but I am willing to take the risk if you will agree to my terms."

Noel Is Dismayed.

I was watching Noel's face as well as Olina's, and although both were too well trained to show any emotions, I was sure I read gratification in the girl's yes, and something akin to dismay in Noel's.

"I—do not think—I ought to impose upon your hospitalnty so much," Noel said a bit unhappily, looking directly at me.

"Let me decide that, please," Philip Veritzen said curtly.

"Rather, let me decide." I said to both of them. "Remember, Noel, you couldn't impose on us if you tried. You are one of the family, and I shall put you to bed or hang you up on a nail, whichever is handiest for me. But you know that you are welcome."

"I do know it," Noel said gratefully, and Lillian cut short any further remarks, if, indeed, he had intended to make any.

No Communication.

"Then we're only waiting for you, Dear Heart," she said pertly to Philip Veritzen. "Are you willing to leave Noel here, and not have any communication with him while he is here?"

"You mean that I am not to telephone to find out how the queen is, or what progress is being made upon the operetta?" The great producer seemed utterly bewildered at the cavalier treatment so novel to him.

"I mean exactly that," Lillian said inexorably. "Remember, we are like a besieged castle here. As long as we stay inside we are perfectly safe and you need not fear for us. And the moment the queen is able to see you, we shall make the great exception and permit you to come over just once. But until we give you that word, you must stay away, and if Noel comes it is only on condition that he stays here incommunicado until the chief gives the word that we all may resume our normal mode of life again. How about it, Darling? Can you subscribe to the articles of faith?"

THEATER

HIDDEN cameras helped in obtain unrestrained, natural scenes of the Dionne quintuplets for "Five of a Kind," their new starring picture. At all times, in their scenes with Jean Hersholt and with others, their attitude was that they were playing a game. . . . Gloria Stuart will play opposite Don Ameche in "The Three Musketeers." The Ritz Brothers are also in the picture.

Depicts Life Struggle.

Sea raiding in the treacherous waters off the Alaskan coast, with fishermen pitted in a life-and-death struggle against salmon pirates forms the plot background of "Spawn of the North," drama of life in the Arctic country, at the Madison. The struggle in "Spawn of the North" between two lifelong friends, played by George Raft and Henry Fonda, who find themselves arrayed against each other when the clash comes, mirrors the constant warfare in the north country. Dorothy Lamour and John Barrymore are in the cast.

Golf Dance In "Carefree."

One of the most unusual and novel dance routines ever filmed is presented by Fred Astaire in "Carefree," in which Ginger Rogers co-stars. It is a combination golf and dance number executed to the music of "Since They Turned Loch Lomond Into Swing." The picture deals with the triangular romance between an actress, psychiatrist and a lawyer. Ralph Bellamy and Franklin Pangborn support the two stars. It's at the Ohio.

"Crime Over London."

Margot Grahame and Paul Cavanaugh head the cast of "Crime Over London," one of the features at the Majestic through Thursday. As the title indicates the picture revolves around the activities of gangsters who terrorize London. In one of the scenes they wreck a large department store. The No. 2 feature is "The Prisoner of Zenda," with Ronald Coleman, Madeleine Carroll and Douglas Fairbanks, jr.

Together Fourth Time.

Co-starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy for the fourth time, "The Girl of the Golden West," a musical panorama of early California, graces the screen of the Ritz theater. A bandit and a gambling sheriff fall in love with Miss MacDonald, who runs a saloon. And the film revolves around the adventures of the two men in their fight to win the gal's hand. "The County Hospital," with Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, completes the double feature.

"Gangs of New York."

Charles Bickford and Ann Dvorak top the cast of "Gangs of New York," one of the features opening Wednesday on the twin bill at the Park theater. The film is the story of the adventures of a detective who closely resembles an infamous gang leader and poses as the gangster, while that individual is in prison, in order to round up the entire gang. "What Becomes of the Children?" is the second feature.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, September 21.

ACCORDING TO the lunar transits, this should be a day of very expansive interests, with enlarged prospects of increasing the fortunes by fresh opportunities, increased prestige and by the substantial co-operation of those of influence and authority. It would be well to cultivate these, both in business and social contact, since employment, capital, political or diplomatic or fraternal relations may depend upon their unqualified approval. But use discretion and finesse in your approaches rather than direct action.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves on the threshold of a year of splendid opportunities for increasing the fortunes, enlarging the scope of their activities and expanding their personal business and social prestige. Beneficial conditions in employment, especially where political, diplomatic or fraternal associations are concerned, seem to beget openings to be taken advantage of by finesse or tact.

A child born on this day may be splendidly endowed with all those qualities and factors making for conspicuous success in life, with promise of reaching high station and probably public acclaim. It may have a just, noble and proud nature.

STUDY WOMEN IN EUROPE

McMurry, a course especially designed to acquaint students with significant developments in the education of women in the United States and European countries is being offered at the summer school of Columbia university, New York. The study analyzes the problems facing women in Russia, Germany and the United States.

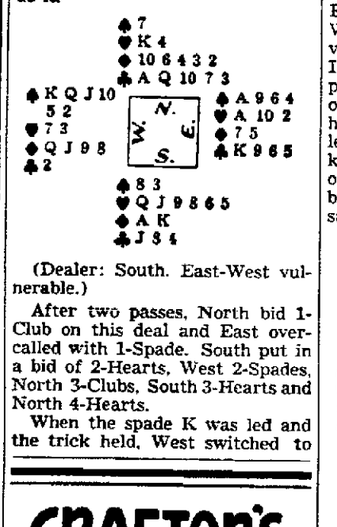
"The Authority on Authorities"

USE YOUR KNOWLEDGE

Many a contract can be defeated by any one of several different lines of defense, yet is made, anyway. Such fortune for the declarer is usually due to the difficulty of his opponents in trying to infer the composition of each other's hands. Whenever either can cut down the amount of guesswork by using knowledge his partner may not manage to deduce, it is his duty to do it.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After two passes, North bid 1-Club on this deal and East overcalled with 1-Spade. South put in a bid of 2-Hearts, West 2-Spades, North 3-Clubs, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

When the spade K was led and the trick held, West switched to the diamond 8, which South took with the K. He then ruffed the spade 8 and led a heart to East's A. East returned a diamond to South's A. The outstanding trumps were drawn and the club J offered. East won and that was the last trick for his side.

When West led the spade K, East hoped, as he played low, that West would lead a trump to prevent South from ruffing a spade. It was not necessary for him to put the guess up to West. By overtaking the first trick he could have cashed in the heart A and led another and that would have kept South from game. The lead of the club 2 on the second trick by West would have achieved the same result.

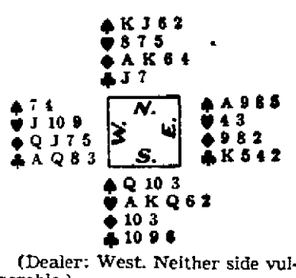
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the best defense against South's 4-Heart contract after the lead of the diamond 5?

INSURED LOANS ARRANGED FOR DAMAGED FARMS

Aid Given When Buildings Are Destroyed by Fires and Other Disasters.

Farm houses, barns, and other farm buildings, destroyed or damaged by fire or other disaster may be rebuilt or repaired with loans obtained from private lending institutions and insured by the Federal Housing administration.

The repair of minor damage to farm buildings or the farm house may be financed with short-term loans insured under the property improvement credit plan. The construction of new accessory buildings, to replace those destroyed by fire or other similar catastrophies, may be financed either under the regular insured property improvement credit plan or, in special cases, under the so-called disaster loan section of the national housing act.

Under recent amendments to the act, it also is possible for farm borrowers, to obtain from private lending institutions long term mortgage loans, insured by the Federal Housing administration, to be used for rebuilding farm houses or farm buildings.

In general, FHA officials state, farmers should apply for short-term loans in cases involving minor expenditures. Major replacement or repair programs may be eligible for financing under the new farm mortgage program, so long as the borrower can establish his ability to meet monthly or periodic payments, and so long as the farm property conforms to certain requirements set up by the Federal Housing administration.

Here Are a Few Timely Tips for The Home Owner

Q. The leaders on my house burst last winter. I am going to repair them but would like to know what caused it before making the repairs. Can you tell me?

A. The leaders must have been clogged with leaves, twigs, and dirt and became filled with water, which froze, expanded, and burst the leaders

Q. How effective are lightning rods?

A. Properly installed rods of adequate size are a distinct protection. An inadequate installation might be dangerous. If you are considering having them installed, go to a reliable concern and let them figure your needs.

Q. What is a good way to conceal grease spots on a painted kitchen floor?

A. Add a splatter finish. This is done by splattering different colored paints over the surface. It should be done by a painter.

Q. Will the use of radiator covers cause a loss of heat?

A. Covers with openings at the bottom and grilles either on top or at the top of the front face with the balance of that face closed, while cutting down radiated heat, will increase convection heat Such a radiator cover acts as a flue and sets up a draft over the radiator that carries the warm air quickly into the room.

BUCYRUS—Collections for the period just ended dropped $34,000 below collections for the same period in 1937, according to figures released by County Treasurer M W. Quay Total collection for the period ending Sept 10 was $336,-895.32.

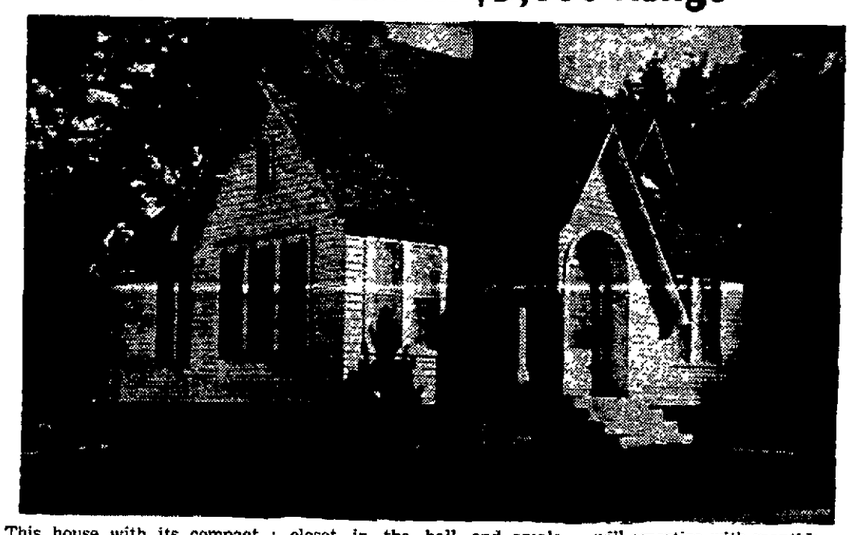
5-Room House In $5,000 Range



This house with its compact floor plan has five rooms and is located in Springfield, Ill. The living room is of generous size and has an open fire place. The adjoining dining room makes it possible for the room to have four exposures. There is a linen closet in the hall and ample room in each bedroom as well as additional storage space in the attic. The property is valued at $4,850 and the federal housing administration has issued a commitment to insure a $3,250 mortgage on the property, which will amortize with monthly payments of $31.22 which includes proportionate payments on interest, taxes and other fixed charges.

BLUE, GREEN DINING ROOM

A dining room with plenty of windows can be made most attractive with soft greens and brown. A sagebrush green rug contrasts particularly well with a walnut floor and furniture. Pale green-tinted paint is used for the walls and woodwork. The ceiling is ivory and draperies of the same tone hang at the windows.

WHEN HANGING PICTURES

To avoid cracking the plaster when driving a nail into a wall, try thrusting the nail through a cake of soap just before driving in.

STAGES PLAY AT SHILOH SCHOOL

SHILOH—A home talent comedy, "Womanless Wedding," will be presented at 8:15 p. m. today and Wednesday night in the Shiloh high school auditorium.

Sponsored by the Shiloh high school student council, the performances will feature characters who will portray noted personalities of the stage and screen and of the musical world.

The play is directed by Lilyan Wiseman. The Shiloh high school orchestra will play between acts.

OLD ROOF LEFT UNDER NEW ONE PROVIDES BETTER INSULATION

When the nature of the new roofing permits it to be laid over the old covering, the advantages gained are that the work can be done without exposing the interior of the building to the weather, the old roofing provides additional insulation, and the labor incident to removal is avoided.

Before selecting the new covering, however, the roof framing should be examined to determine whether it has sufficient strength to carry the additional weight. Slate, clay tile, and asbestos shingles are heavy and when they are used, the rafters may require bracing.

There is an advantage in not removing old roll roofing and composition shingles, especially when re-roofing with rigid shingles or metal, provided the old covering is not "puffy" or badly wrinkled.

In preparing an old wood shingle surface to receive a new covering, all curled, badly warped, and loose shingles should be nailed flat and secure, and all protruding nails should be driven down.

COOL BEDROOM COLORS

Cool and crisp is the color scheme for a bedroom with walls and woodwork of pale green and soft yellow window curtains, flowered with rose and green. French gray paint is used for the furniture and the ceiling is painted pale yellow. Lamps are shaded in rose color.
